

The People of Chisago County (19th Century)

Book 7

(U - Z)

Compiled By Earl W. Leaf

Introduction

Book 7, this book, is the last in the 7-volume set of books which tell a little of the stories of people who settled in Chisago County in the last half of the 19th Century. It includes people of all of the ethnic groups who found their way into the county before the turn of the century (1900).

While many individuals and families are mentioned, they still represent only a small part of the immigrants who made their New World homes in Chisago County. Originally I had concentrated on Swedes who came to Chisago County. I later added a book of Non-Swedes. However, this series represents all groups of Europeans, as well as “Yankees” who had settled first in New England and the Mid-Atlantic colonies decades earlier.

The purpose of these books is to help beginners get jump-started in the family history process. While not every family is mentioned, there are some areas that are fairly complete. They include sketches of just about all of the military men and women who served in three wars (through World War I), as well as most of the known residents of the two county Poor Farms at Sunrise and Branch.

Since new material keeps becoming available, the work is never complete. Some of the persons about whom there is added or new information are added at the end of this book. Some information is that of persons not previously listed; and some is additional information about persons previously listed. Much of the information in the supplement has to do with people from areas not covered as well in the earlier books—particularly from the North Branch, Sunrise and Rush City communities. Max Malmquist, in his 4-volume North Branch Regional History, has much more information on individuals and families from these communities.

I apologize for the number of “typos” in the texts. Arthritis and other hand and finger problems have made it more difficult to type as accurately as in the past; and making more mistakes means I miss more of them when proofreading.

Finally, this is an accumulation of information from census records, cemetery records, newspaper accounts, family traditions, etc. None of these sources are completely accurate alone, but I could not do the detective work on that many biographical sketches. Though these material cannot be treated as gospel, they can hopefully be clues to further verification and research.

The People of Chisago County – Supplement

It would be nice if a writing project like this could have an ending—that I could say it is complete. But it will never end as new sources pop up, and older records like the census, land records, family histories, cemetery records, church and town histories, etc. have far more information than one could possibly transfer to this kind of project.

If you cannot find what you are looking for in these seven volumes, you can find much more at the Chisago County Historical Society, the libraries within the county, the 4-volume set of books by Max Malmquist featuring North Branch and the surrounding area, the user-friendly “Find A Grave” site on the Internet, 70 years of newspaper articles, among many other sources on the Internet and in published books by families, churches and communities.

The information on the following pages includes additional information to add to sketches already done, as well as sketches of persons not previously covered. A few corrections are also included.

I realize that many important people who lived in the county in the last half of the 19th Century may not be included. I accumulated information as it became available one way or another. There is no logical reason why a family was or was not included, nor is there any guarantee of accuracy of information on any given family.
